

Water Feedback Mechanism in Climate System

V.V. Chukin

Russian State Hydrometeorological University, Meteorological Department, Saint-Petersburg, Russian Federation
(chukin@meteolab.ru)

Water vapor, droplets and ice crystals play a significant role in the energy balance of the climate system. This study presents the results of modeling the influence of the water cycle on climate. It uses a zero-dimensional model of energy balance which taking into account the evaporation of water from the surface of the oceans, cloud formation and precipitation.