This contribution presents the purpose and results of a workshop run with students of master II Bologna "Urban design" within the joint framework of two courses: "The state of urban crisis and vulnerability" and "Protection of localities against natural and man-made risks" in February 2010. This is the second workshop of this kind, the first being run within the frame of a CNCSIS (Romanian Authority for Funding Research in Higher Education) project led by Cristina Gociman. The results of the two workshops will also be compared. Now this second workshop serves the purpose of the established Centre for Emergency Architecture.
