

General Discussion - Future Perspectives - Future Research on Urban Soils

The Session Convener and the Co-Conveners

As the session on urban soils has brought together scientists of different countries and different perspectives and approaches on urban soils, there is the need for a more general discussion at the end of the session.

In the last years, urban soils gained more and more attention from planners, politicians but also from scientists. What are the lessons we learned from this session? What generalisations can be gained? What new concepts have been discussed and what are the fields of future research?
