

Insight Publishers and ICT-based hydrometeorology science

James Barsby
Insight Publishers

Insight Publishers is a young publishing company with a clear vision to enhance the level of consciousness in the larger social system. With a strong humane foundation, our essence of being is to nurture wisdom and we are keen to tread and explore any path, both known and unknown, towards the realization of this aspiration of ours.

Our aim is to bring out books and artifacts that will aide us in our quest for maturing into fine individuals. We believe that every person can get limited by oneself and hence it is only self-awareness that can unleash one's potential to the fullest.

Our work in this space is motivated by a vision of nurturing wisdom through partnering with fellow students of life. We have faith in the inner power to affect positive changes in our lives and welcome you to undertake this journey with us, in the path of self-actualization.

In this respect, European research projects, for example focusing on ICT-based hydrometeorology science, are at the forefront of this development and we will be celebrating this fact by involving the very best – displaying their work and results with examples of progress towards global alliances. Underlying all this will be the fact that researchers and industry must work closely together to drive innovation and deliver what is possible, especially within the collaborative environment that we all now live in.