

Evaluation of severe weather in ECMWF forecasts

L. Magnusson
ECMWF, Reading, UK

Reliable forecasts of severe weather are one of main parts in the ECMWF strategy. In this presentation we evaluate the ability in the different forecast systems to simulate forecast severe weather. This will be done both focusing on the model climate and the predictability of severe events. The presentation will have a focus on Europe and the different kinds of severe weather affecting this region.