Abstract

Cassini's Education and Public Outreach program has undergone a couple of program replans and evaluations since 2001. But the strongest lesson learned was the value of reaching out to, and working with national experts in language arts, the planetarium, astronomy and museum community, and the World Wide Web as it developed and began implementing its Education and Public Outreach plans.

Along the way, we learned the value of partners, of grabbing some opportunities as they emerged and letting a few ideas go. We also learned the value of talking to our customers, educators and the public.

Building opportunities for meaningful student and public participation in the science and engineering of the Cassini Mission has been both a challenge and a privilege. In this talk, Alice Wessen, Manager for Cassini Education and Public Outreach will share a few lessons learned from our mistakes and our successes.

5. Equations

Below, you will find examples of two equations. You should use an equation editor of your word-processing program in order to include your equation(s). The equation number should be placed at the right side of the column and all equations should be consecutively numbered.

$$a^2 + b^2 = c^2 \quad (1)$$

$$E = m \cdot c^2 \quad (2)$$

6. Summary and Conclusions

After having finished your paper in your word-processing program, please create a respective pdf file out of the document. The correct page settings of 237 (height) x 180 (width) mm are included in the template document. Please make sure that the generated pdf file actually has a page size of 237 x 180 mm. This is the only way to guarantee the proper inclusion of your paper in the Copernicus Office database. Please note that you are asked to upload a pdf file during the abstract submission in Copernicus Office. No other file type than .pdf is accepted for the file upload. The actual citation header will be added automatically!

Acknowledgements

The Acknowledgements section should not be numbered. Here, you may include all persons or institutions which you would like to thank. We recommend that the abstract is carefully compiled and thoroughly checked, in particular with regard to the list of authors, before submission.
