

Scholarly Communication: changing the way we do research in the Humanities with Mendeley

Felix Bayode Oke

Research in the Humanities in contemporary time has necessitated the use of digital tools in analysing, examining, and producing a filtered output in a more simplified way. These tools such as Mendeley among others are used to maximise cost as well as to save time. Mendeley is a biographic manager that helps to organise the library, share resources online and discover through researchers across all disciplines with least effort. The aim of this workshop, therefore, is to acquaint researchers with the tool for proper citation and reference styles in the digital age. It will also equip them with the state-of-the-art research in literature searches, MS word citation format and bibliography. Despite several referencing software that exists, Mendeley surpasses them all regarding its various versions (Desktop, web browser and Andriod), user-friendly approach and being a free software.
