

Translating Open Science ideals to actions for scientists

Xiaoli Chen (1), Robin Dasler (2), Suenje Dallmeier-Tiessen (3), and Sebastian Feger (4)

(1) CERN, orcid.org/0000-0003-0207-2705, (2) CERN, orcid.org/0000-0002-4695-7874, (3) CERN, orcid.org/0000-0002-6137-2348, (4) CERN, orcid.org/0000-0002-0287-0945

It is often possible to implement generic Open Science recommendations in a pan-disciplinary manner since it is relatively simple to find common ground among scholarly communication service providers. Yet bringing scientists, who hold wildly different perspectives and priorities, onboard the Open Science train is no trivial task.